

Dr. Kara Stern

Head of Education Solutions

 LinkedIn

When she was in 2nd grade, Dr. Kara Stern decided she wanted to be a teacher. Her commitment to education never wavered. With over 30 years of experience, Dr. Stern began her career as a high school English teacher, later becoming a middle school principal, Executive Director of Math for America, and education content strategist for EdTech marketing teams. Throughout her illustrious career, Dr. Stern has earned two graduate degrees and has played diverse roles in the educational landscape. Notably, she spearheaded the creation of a unique professional learning community for outstanding math and science teachers in New York City, expanding it statewide under Governor Cuomo's initiative. Dr. Stern challenges the idea of communication as an afterthought, and her work emphasizes communication's equal importance alongside instruction for effective school-to-home connections that are vital to a student's readiness and overall success.

Beyond her educational pursuits, Dr. Stern indulges her passion for reading, consuming around two books weekly, with a penchant for novels spanning various authors and genres, gravitating towards tales of heists and spies.
